Innovations Connection Project

Aurora Labs Limited ("A3D" or "the Company") (ASX:A3D) is pleased to announce the commencement of a joint research project with Curtin University (Curtin); Material Development for the Selective Laser Melting process used in 3D printing, as part of the Innovation Connections service under the AusIndustry Entrepreneurs' Programme.

The project provides a Researcher from Curtin, utilisation of materials testing facilities at Curtin's John de Laeter Centre and data interpretation to support A3D's ongoing development of high power high productivity printing, including its patented MCP™ technology.

This project compliments the Company's material development activities within industrial print services delivery for existing customers such as Alcoa and proposed future joint development of MCP™ application into large scale bespoke production applications. The research outcomes will also support and strengthen the performance of Aurora's first commercial printer, the AL250.

The Innovation Connections service provided Commonwealth grant funding of $39,886 for this 12-month project that is matched by A3D's contribution of $39,886.

A3D Technology Manager, Dr Eshan Foroozmehr stated:

"We are very happy to be undertaking joint research with Curtin, to support our technology commercialisation, and continue to expand our collaboration with local universities to develop sovereign industrial capability. We are thankful for the support of Innovation Connections to gain access to quality research assistance."

Ends

Approved for release by the Company's Board of Directors.
